

PROVENANCE OF FOOD

A Taste of Tatton: Our produce

Our food is handcrafted on the premises by our team of professional chefs. Where possible we use fresh, seasonal produce from Tatton's Kitchen Gardens and Estate, including salads, greens, herbs and apples from our orchard. Our exclusive range of estate-reared meat can be purchased in Tatton's Housekeeper's Store, including Venison which has been reared on the estate since 1290.

Our bakery

For more than 20 years we have been perfecting our cakes here at Tatton. Baked using traditional recipes using real butter, free range local eggs and rich Belgian chocolate. Our signature Egerton's Afternoon Tea is lovingly crafted by hand and our warm home baked scones with clotted cream and preserves are everyone's favourite!

Our suppliers

Tatton's very own garden team supply us with the freshest salad leaves, root vegetables and herbs straight from the Walled Kitchen Garden. We also like to support our local community by using local suppliers.

Group Bookings and Private Parties

With gorgeous garden views, the Gardener's Cottage rooms offer a unique location for special occasions, celebrations, meetings, or simply for a get together.

the GARDENER'S COTTAGE

TATTON'S KITCHEN GARDENS

To walk through Tatton's Gardens is to walk through the history of gardening itself. Since 1715, each Egerton family member enhanced the look and influenced the style of the grounds as well as developed more of the parkland into the stunning gardens that you see today.

The site of the former Head Gardener's Cottage, nestled away in the Walled Kitchen Gardens, is steeped in history. Once known as the Old Dairy, it was home to Dairymaids who produced milk, cream, butter and cheese for the house and Egerton family. When a new Dairy was built at Tatton Dale Farm some years later, the building became home to a Gamekeeper and his family. This was influenced by William Tatton Egerton who had inherited the estate in 1856.

By 1883 it had evolved into a home for the Head Gardener and his family, when the estate was inherited by the second Wilbraham Egerton. He decided that the Head Gardener should have a cottage within the gardens and it was remodelled into 'Gardener's House' and the rooms that you see today.

The Victorian Walled Kitchen Gardens were the powerhouse to the country estate providing year-round produce for the Egerton family, their guests and staff. The provenance of the food today can still be seen in Tatton's Kitchen Gardens, adjacent to the Gardener's Cottage. The greens, herbs and root vegetables grown in the vegetable garden at present are known to have been part of the kitchen gardens at Tatton during the Edwardian period. A variety of produce is still grown traditionally and make up some of our special dishes here in the Gardener's Cottage.
